

GATA Job Posting

The U.S. Department of State's Office of Antiterrorism Assistance (ATA) trains civilian security and law enforcement personnel from friendly governments in police procedures that deal with terrorism, bomb detection, crime scene investigation, airport and building security, maritime protections, and VIP protection.

Most ATA program recipients are developing nations lacking human and other resources needed to maintain an effective antiterrorism program and infrastructure. ATA training seeks to address deficiencies noted in the ability to protect national borders, protect critical infrastructure, protect national leadership, respond to and resolve terrorist incidents, and manage critical terrorist incidents having national-level implications.

Since its inception in 1983, the program has trained and assisted over 84,000 foreign security and law enforcement officials from 154 countries.

The Global Antiterrorism Assistance (GATA) program plays a key role in our strategy of building partner nation law enforcement capacity to detect, deter, disrupt, and investigate terrorism activities and suspects.

We are looking for people with extensive experience in the following topic areas:

- CBRN
- Cyber Forensics and Investigations
- Explosive Operations and Investigation
- Homeland Security
- Infrastructure Protection
- Law Enforcement Management
- Police Operations and Investigations
- Hostage Negotiation
